INTROVERT'S GUIDE TO CAMPMEETING

BY KALEB EISELE

Is camp meeting an introvert's nightmare? It doesn't have to be!

Being surrounded by people and activity for days on end can be draining for introverts, but finding the best places to get away and recharge can turn camp meeting into a positive experience.

While you may feel like you've explored every corner of the campgrounds, an introvert's dream is just a short walk away in the little town of Gladstone. Gladstone is best seen on your feet, and the relaxing and quiet corners are easy to miss if you drive past the stop-light! Here are a few places you might want to visit if you're looking for a little peace:

Cross Park: Nestled in the middle of a 4.3 mile paved loop along the Clackamas River, Cross Park features benches and picnic tables with in eyesight of the water. It's the perfect place for prayer, exercise, and contemplation.

Friends of Gladstone Nature Park: With a tree lined trailhead sitting just beyond the campground fence, this little park is the perfect place for bird watching, learning about native plant species, and watching the butterflies at their dedicated butterfly/pollinator hill!

Food & Drinks: We sure love our pronto pups, but Gladstone also has several options to sit down for a relaxing 'camp meeting time out' experience. Try a veggie burger at Happy's, a healthy, delicious smoothie bowl from Tiger Fruit, or a sandwich in the living room of Crossroads Coffee Café across the street!

Reading Time: Finally, if you're looking for an air-conditioned place to read your newest book from the ABC Book Sale, the Oregon City Library has plenty of room to stretch out and recharge your devices-and your mind.

SITTING DOWN WITH RICHIE HALVERSEN

BY GREG BROTHERS

This week, we got a chance to know this year's Plaza Pavilion speaker, Richie Halversen, a little better.

What's your prayer for camp meeting?
My prayer for camp meeting is that every single person—present, virtual, and in the surrounding community—will be blessed to an outpouring of the Holy Spirit. I pray God that will be glorified! I pray for an experience of salvation and transformation for everyone present.

I pray for revival in the hearts of each believer and that revival that will go far beyond camp meeting into the community that each person resides in.

I pray people will experience community and fellowship—something that has been so desperately missed over the past few years.

I pray for victory in the lives of each person. That God will bless the whole person: spiritually, emotionally, mentally, physically, relationally—every facet of our life.

Who has been a spiritual mentor to you?
My greatest spiritual mentors are my parents: Richard and Mary Halversen. Growing up, I saw them love people into a life-changing relationship with Jesus. This gave me a passion for evangelism, and mission.

Looking back, have there been any prayers that you're glad were not answered?
Sixteen years ago, I was laid off. I sent out a bunch of resumes and was invited to interview at another company. I went to the interview feeling very confident - but I'd been praying,

"Lord if this is not your will, then please slam the door in my face."

The interview went bad from the moment I walked in the room; I literally had the door slammed in my face.

That's when I finally started listen to God's call into full-time pastoral ministry. In the end God really did answer my prayers - not the prayer of my mind, but the prayer of my heart!

Camp meeting can be a draining experience for speakers and presenters; how do you keep this from happening?
That's why I set aside my mornings for prayer and preparation. It also helps to spend time in nature, and to exercise.

What prayer requests do you have for the people who will be praying for you this week?
That God will give me His message—not my message or anyone else's message, but His message. Please pray for my family, as we are separated, and pray that we all stay healthy.

Don't forget!

CAMP MEETING CHRONICLE

BY GREG BROTHERS

Yes, the First Aid team makes house-calls; talk to anyone who's driving a golf-cart, and they'll make it happen . . . Mint chocolate-chip is still the favorite at Camp Meeting - but the people at the Pathfinder Snack Shack have great hopes for Rocky Road . . . Near as I can figure, it takes roughly a hundred microphones to run Camp Meeting; you'll find about a third of those in the Big Tent during the evening meeting . . . The people on our Security team don't take bribes, but they do like maple bars. Just saying . . . The big generator behind the Pathfinder Snack Shack? It provides electricity to the food booths . . . Who has the most fun at Camp Meeting? I'd vote for the two women driving around with the "Hydration Cart," giving out drinks of cold water . . . Please buy your Sabbath meal tickets at Treasury by 5 PM today; that's how we know how much food to make . . . The last time we had Camp Meeting, the Pathfinder Snack Shack sold a grand total of 7216 Pronto Pups. Think we can beat that?
